DEDICATION

Many Annuals have been dedicated in the past and many more will be dedicated in the future, but we feel certain that no Annual has ever been or ever will be dedicated with a more sincere feeling of love, admiration, and respect for one who has endeared herself to the heart of every student as this volume of "Cat Tales" which we the Senior Class of '33 dedicate to

MRS. G. A. LAING.

MRS. G. A. LAING, Registrar

APPRECIATION

The staff of 1933 "CAT TALES" wishes to take this opportunity to express our deep appreciation to the following to whom we are indebted in publishing this volume: To Miss Hester Struthers who served so ably as faculty-advisor; to Mr. Fred E. Little whose invaluable advice aided us in the preparation of this book; to the members of the cast and the directors of the Senior Play; and to the merchants and firms who made this edition of "CAT TALES" possible by their advertisements.

The tom-toms are drumming . . . the call to arms. We have spent many years preparing for this great battle which we are now about to encounter . . . the battle of Life. Those long happy years of preparation are over now . . . they are irretrievable. The compilers of this book offer it to you as a souvenir of those preparatory days. In the words of Tiny Tim, "God bless us every one," . . . . . and . . . happy hunting-grounds!

DR. W. O. HAMPTON, Principal

Wishing you happiness N. H. H. S. will ever remember you.

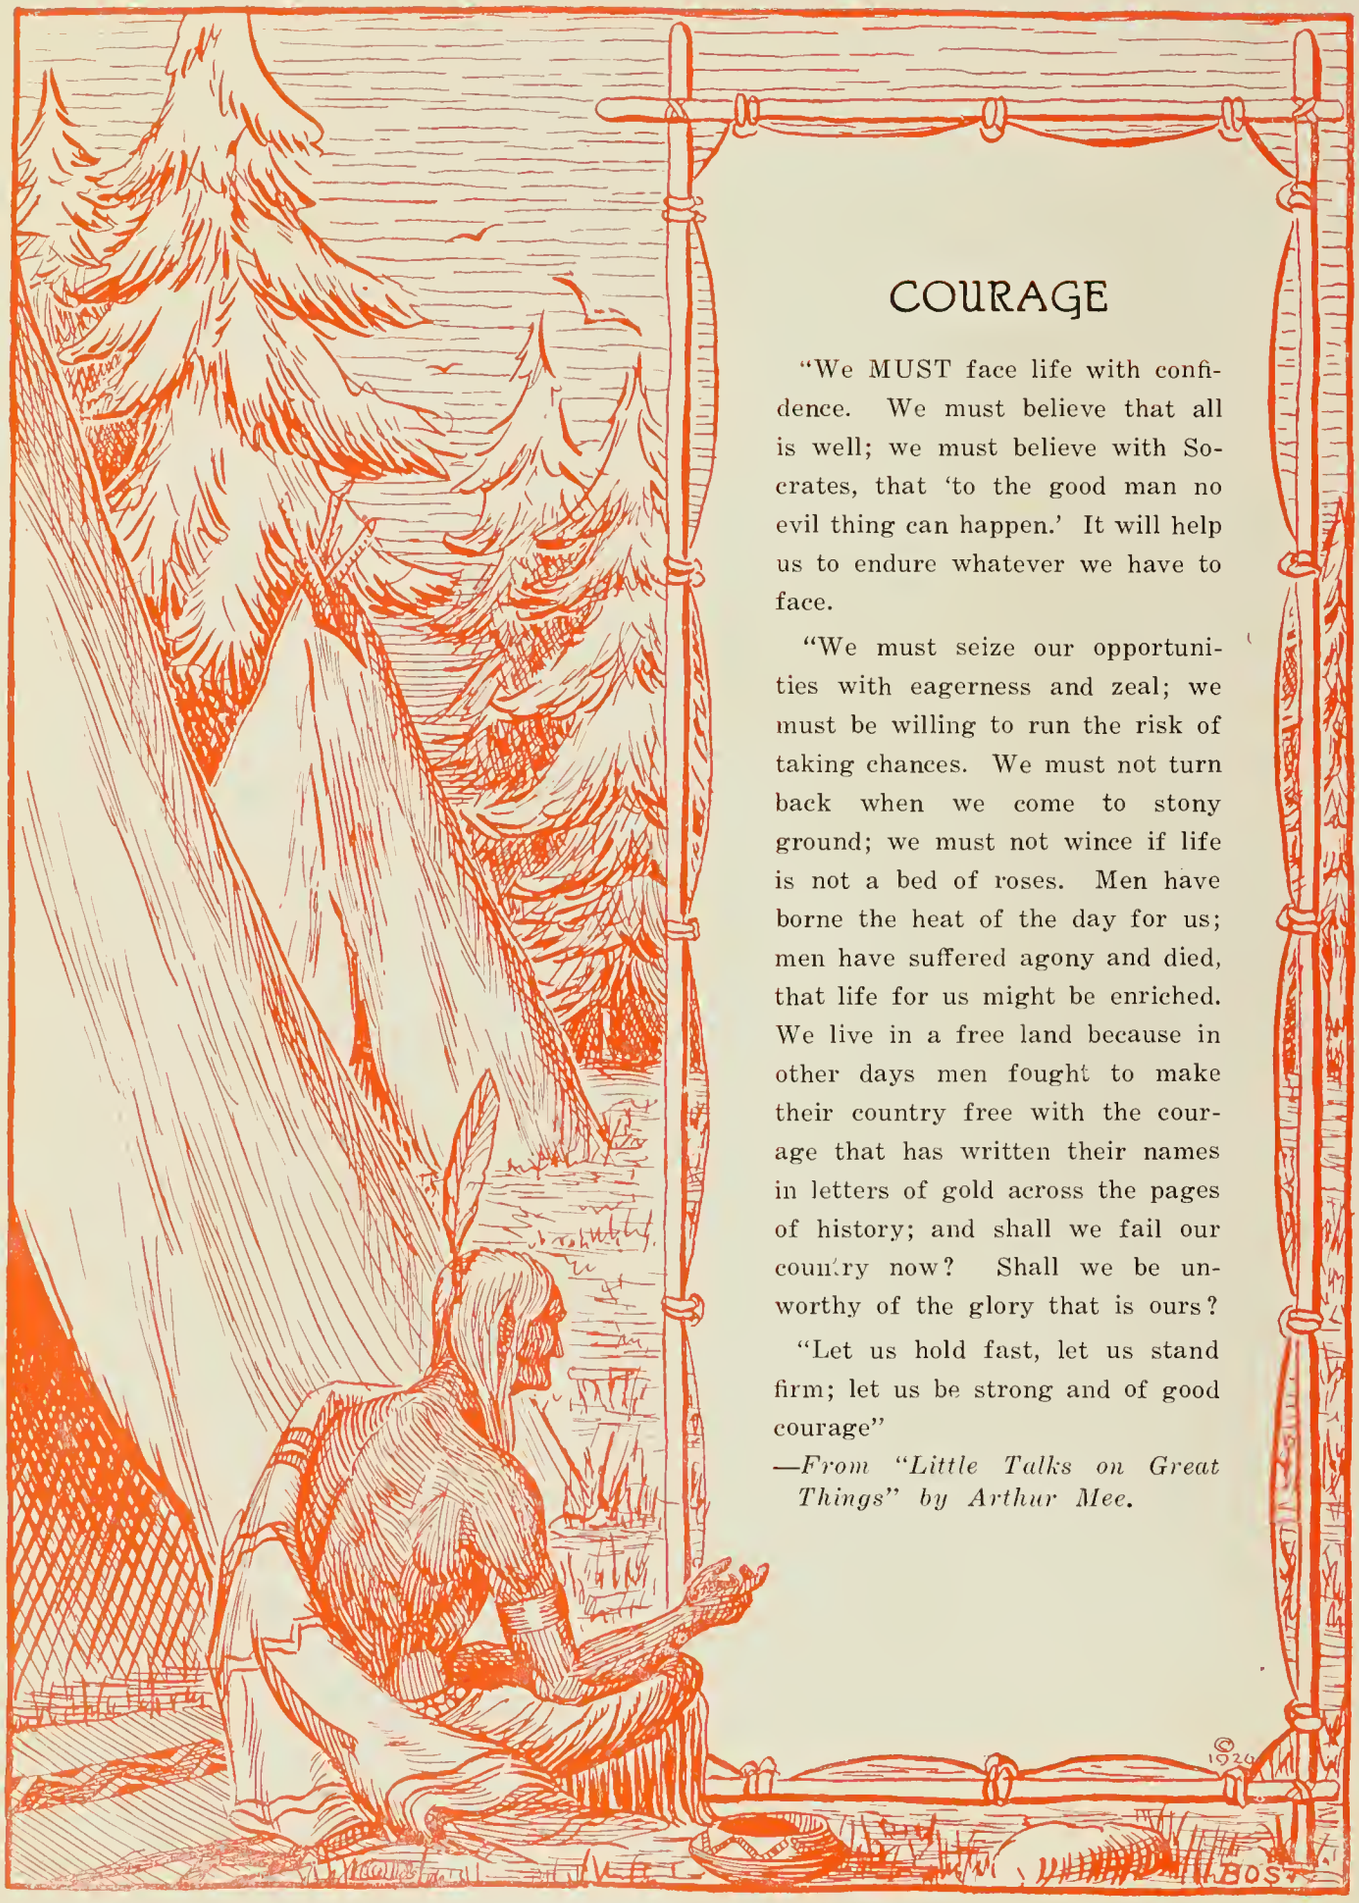
"KITE"



COURAGE

"We MUST face life with confidence. We must believe that all is well; we must believe with Socrates, that 'to the good man no evil thing can happen.' It will help us to endure whatever we have to face.

"We must seize our opportunities with eagerness and zeal; we must be willing to run the risk of taking chances. We must not turn back when we come to stony ground; we must not wince if life is not a bed of roses. Men have borne the heat of the day for us; men have suffered agony and died, that life for us might be enriched. We live in a free land because in other days men fought to make their country free with the courage that has written their names in letters of gold across the pages of history; and shall we fail our country now? Shall we be unworthy of the glory that is ours?

"Let us hold fast, let us stand firm; let us be strong and of good courage"

Class History

June 10, 1933, was one of the most memorable days of my life. The magnificent gaiety of graduation permeated me with a thrill that will last forever. But night finally came; the universal curtain of darkness closed my eyes, and Morpheus invoked my rest with a strange fantasy. The cobwebby and sensitive filament of my dreams was at first a delightful maze of wondrous frivolities. Then————————

I was an artist. Before me stood a gigantic canvass, and at one side, my colors on a huge pallette. But the brilliant colors were alive. Yes, alive! They were swarming children who seemed to be pointing to the canvass and whispering excitedly about high school affairs. I gathered from their remarks that their entire class—the class of 1933—was to be the first to skip the eighth grade. It was then that I conceived the idea to paint, on the white canvas, the history of their class, '33.

With deft and fast strokes, my brush transferred these children to the canvas—but something was missing! What did I need as a background for my picture? Ah, of course, New Hanover High School.

When I began my painting, I had only a band of boys and girls who were entering the high school for the first time. Perhaps they were "green", but they were also enthusiastic and enterprising, soon becoming adjusted to their new surroundings and the ways of the upper-classmen. They were a happy group, but were only too glad, at the end of the year, to discard their name, "Freshmen".

Then readily do I remember another strange trick that Morpheus played upon me. Although I had worked the freshmen into the painting for nine months, experimenting here and there with the subtle colors of English, French, Science, etc., I slowly shook my head. More work was needed yet. I had an exquisite thrill that the painting was going to be a great one. That influence drove me on.

After resting for three months, I again picked up my brush to start on the second stage of my painting—the Sophomore year. However, the school that I had so painstakingly wrought seemed woefully small. Additions were added to the building, as it could not accommodate the increased attendance. Until this work could be completed, it was found necessary to divide the students into morning and afternoon shifts. In spite of the inconvenience and confusion experienced by both faculty and students, the school spirit was never entirely lost, although it seemed at lowest ebb and was often rumored at death's door.

And the second year of my delightful artistry ended. Again I viewed my unfinished painting. Three months passed—Once more I endeavored to perfect my picture by depicting the events of the third year. With careful strokes I again wrought harmony into the picture which I had left in a state of confusion. More time was required for the student's class work. This did not cause a lull in outside activities, as the students continued to show much interest in the various clubs. There followed an active season of football, baseball, and other athletics. The Junior Play, "Seventeen", was most successful, displaying marked talent and ability. One of the most outstanding events of that year was the Junior-Senior Entertainment held in the High School. This was considered one of the most enjoyable Junior-Seniors ever given.

Again I put aside my unfinished work which seems to be rapidly taking shape. As I started on my fourth year's work, it was beginning to be a real pleasure.

The dream now became more vivid than at any other time. I felt as though I were actually living it. A cloud which had steadily been brewing for some time broke with a clap. The class felt that it must publish a school paper. This undertaking, "The Cat's Meow" met with great success through the efforts of a capable staff. Superlatives were chosen, causing much temporary excitement. The crowning achievement of the four year's work was in obtaining membership in the National Honor Society, twenty-one members of the class of '33 obtaining this goal. The class had an excellent staff to edit its annual. The dramatic element of the class, after overcoming many handicaps, presented "Girl Shy", their Senior Play. As a finishing touch, the Juniors charmingly entertained the graduating class.

At last the canvas seemed complete. My work was finished. Instead of the swarming horde of children with which I started my masterpiece, I had created each student into a distinct personality, this being necessary for the perfection of my picture—a composite history of the class of '33—which I hope will forever hang in the gallery of each graduate's memory.

VIVIAN DICKSON,
Class Historian.

The Class of '33

At last we've reached commencement day
Before us are our dreams;
Success in all endeavors wait;
Our Alma Mater gleams.
We've reached the top, and now we go
With steps so light and free.
We'll do our best to stand the test—
The class of '33.

But ere we leave you, dear old school
And fellow-students too,
We wish to thank you for the joys
That we have shared with you.
For though we walk the rugged road
Or tread the grassy lea,
Our honest aim will be the same—
The class of '33.

Though some will win and some will lose
After we drift apart,
Life's other memories cannot fade
Dear N. H. from our heart.
We'll cherish it through all the years
Wherever we may be.
We'll gather fame, exalt in name
The class of '33!

Prophecy

"Okey America!" With this old slogan which was used by our old friend, GLADYS WILKINS, thirty-two years ago, we are about to bring you a discovery of the class of '33. We now transfer you to the main dining room of the SAMUEL ADAMS Hotel, located on Forty-second Street. Your announcer is ROBERT H. BOWDEN.

Good evening ladies and gentlemen! This is none other than your old toastmaster, DUVAL GREER. It is a great pleasure for me to introduce at this time one of my old classmates, FRANCES GOLDBERG, who has just returned from a trip to deah ole Wilmington.

Thanks DUVAL. Gee folks, what news I have to tell you. Yes, deah ole Wilmington! And while there, I saw a great number of our classmates who graduated with us in the beloved class of '33.

On my arrival there, I was met by REBA LENNON, LOU MAFFITT, LOIS KING and MARTHA WIGGINS, who escorted me to the greater W. S. McKEITHAN Hotel. Upon entering I found my old friend LOUIS PUCKETT as manager. At the desk I found the clerk was none other than JIMMIE LYELL. Who should I find as bookkeeper but SARA MATHEWS? Looking closer I saw CATHERINE ALEXIUS at the telephone exchange (mirable dictu). On going to the cigar counter to purchase one of JACK FUSSELL'S publications, whom should I see selling cigars but MILTON FINKLESTEIN? Upon observing the counter, my eye fell upon the latest edition of the Hollywood Film Fun, which was published by EMMETT LEWIS and I discovered the pulchritude of HORTENSE GLOVER gracing the front piece.

I left "Finky" and his stand and called for a bell boy, but on the arrival of said "belle" boy, I discovered SHIRLEY BLOCK, ROSEMARY WHITE and MARGARET PESCHAU in a heated debate as to who would carry my baggage. To avoid this confusion I chose FLOY RAE PARKER for the esteemed position. On entering the elevator I found EUGENIA SOUTHERLAND in complete command. It was she who carried me up to the fifty-sixth floor, (I always knew she would go high in this world). My room was swell and as I was tired, I bade my friends farewell until later.

After their departure, I decided to rest, in view of a strenuous evening. However, such rest was not to be mine, for I found myself rudely aroused by a great commotion in the street below. Going to the window, I beheld a most magnificent parade. It was then that I remembered that the occasion was none other than the celebration of the birthday of LILLIAN SHAIN.

Going down to the street I saw MILTON MORRIS, who was at that time secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, leading the parade. Behind the leader came Mayor DAVID OLIVER. Next in view came a brass band, directed by JANE COOPER (as usual, she was astride a galloping steed). Then came the floats. First came a float declaming JULIA FARRAR'S guaranteed hair dye. Next came FITZHUGH GIBSON'S clothing store. The next flaming ad which greeted my occular system was that of JAMES McKEE'S school for delinquents. When all of this had passed in revue, I suddenly decided to take in more of the dear old town.

Proceeding down Chestnut Street, approaching Front, I suddenly came upon that which appeared to be a very high building. Looking closer I observed that it was the CHARLES DEVAUN Bank building, constructed in Nineteen Forty Two, by the WOODROW WILSON Construction Company, the building itself being designed by ELEANOR WOOD. Staring skyward, my eyes beheld the U. S. Flagship, named in honor of NOLDER KORNEGAY. Upon inquiring, I learned that it would be possible for me to board this ship. I was escorted to the elevator by head porter WORTH SPRUNT. Entering the elevator, whom should I see in control but CAROLAN CRAIG. After several seconds of traveling skyward, we came to a sudden stop. Craig informed me that if I would go down the hall and turn to my left and enter the third office on the right, there I would secure my permit to go aboard the flagship. Following his directions, the door disclosed the name of FRED GRIFFITH, who occupied the position of High Admiral. I also observed VIRGINIA BOGAN taking some hasty dictation from HENRY BYRD.

Upon entering the ship I was met by Captain HORACE CORBETT, who escorted me inside the ship. Going into the control room, I saw STEVE BROWN working over what appeared to be a very delicate instrument. I soon learned however, that said instrument was nothing more than one of GWENDOLYN KESTER'S jig saw puzzles. Turning around, I was shocked to see LOUISE McCLAMMY playing a fast game of "bit-bat" with "DUTCHY" McKEITHAN. On leaving I learned that the ship was the product of the EUGENE BLACKWOOD Construction Corporation and that it had been designed by ALBERT KELLEY.

Reaching the street, I proceeded to the corner where my attention was attracted to a huge crowd. Soon after gaining admission to the outer ranks, I found myself upon the front row. Boy, was I shocked? But you know, politics must be politics, for there stood none other than HARRY DOSHER. As usual, he was telling the crowd how to run things. Looking closer, I observed the three J's—DELORES, JANITH and WILBUR JACKSON. There also seemed to be quite a confusion among the ROCHELLE'S and the ROEBUCKS, for there stood ETHEL and WILBUR, in a heated argument with poor "little" HELEN.

I soon became bored and retired to my room, where I delighted myself with some of BLESSING WHITMORE'S assorted chocolates.

At the appointed hour, in company with my friends, we selected one of the VIVIAN DICKSON taxi cabs which was powered by one of WOODARD FARMER'S Compressed Air Motors. Driving down the street, we passed the Imperial Theatre, owned and operated by "COCKY" BARKER. Huge gas signs, the invention of HERBERT BLUETHENTHAL, informed me that ANN HARWELL and JOHN FREDERICKS were appearing in their first production, the title being "The Contented Lover." The production was the masterpiece of HENRY BREEDEN.

Arriving at my destination, which was JUANITA PIERCE'S famous night club, we were met at the curb by MARX NEUWIRTH, who held the exalted position of doorman. After checking our wraps with ALLINE PORTER, we were escorted to our table by head waiter, HAMPTON TILLERY, who assured us that we would find BILLIE ULMER a very good attendant.

Glancing around the club, I was practically convinced that my old buddy, JUANITA, was doing herself proud when the orchestra director, our classmate, MARVIN ALLEN, by-the-way, announced that we would be entertained by an old favorite, "Minnie the Moocher" sung by MARGUERITE McIVER, the silver-toned tenor, to be followed by "Sweet Adeline" by "TINY" DAVIS. I was delighted, but was I ever tickled, when MARVIN announced a tango, by MARGARET DARST and MERCER GALLAGHER? Go ahead and ask me!

After this we were entertained by a very delightful cabaret consisting of PAULINE PARKER and BERNARD DAVIS as comedians. I enjoyed this extensively, but the fun was yet to start, for behold, as I looked on my left I beheld a most dazzling chorus consisting of BESSIE ANDREWS, ANNIE HARRISS BEERY, MARGARET CROMER, LOIS DIXON, and last but not least that most outstanding figure of our class, one who seemed to be everywhere at the same time, BETTY GOODMAN.

After indulging in some of BILL MEYLAND'S light wines and beers we were feeling fit as a fiddle and ready to partake of some real excitement.

Continuing on our merry way we found ourselves in a short time in JACK ANDERSON'S famous "Hot Spot" (1933 slang, by special permission of the copywright owners).

It was private information that the "Speak Quietly" was really owned by BILLY CLEMMONS, Wilmington's foremost gangster. After witnessing a hearty battle between WALTER HOWELL and DOSHER RUARK (Billy's henchmen, by the way) over the affections of HATTIE SCHAEFER, Chief entertainer, the excitement got too rowdy and we decided to call it a night. However, it had grown surprisingly near the wee small hours and my escorts decided that we had to get some sleep in view of the fact that I had a great deal of sight-seeing listed for the next day.

On my arrival at my room, I discovered that some samples had been forwarded to me from ALBERT "BUCK" KEEL'S Department Store, including some of ARTHUR ANDERSON'S cold cream, FRED SMITH'S freckle cream and CLIFTON "CHICK" TAYLOR'S Stay-put for unruly hair.

I was rudely awakened the following morning by a loud noise in my ear. Upon investigation I found it to be JEAN FEENSTRA broadcasting from Station B U L L, owned and operated by CURTIS CHERRY. The radio itself was the production of our CHARLES MORRIS, which I presume was responsible for the static. Realizing that I could capture no more much-needed slumber I got up and after indulging in a shower, installed by the NEILL MUSSLEWHITE Plumbing Company, I went downstairs for breakfast.

The first cafe that I discovered was PETE XANTHOS' Cafe de Luxe, but on observing from a sign that HARRY SMALLBONES was head chef, I checked myself and proceeded farther down the street.

I found myself standing before the cafeteria owned and operated by JOE BOYLAN (remember him from '33, don't you?) Crossing my fingers and throwing salt over my left shoulder, I decided to take a chance and fared forth into the emporium. The first which greeted my eyes was MARIE STEPHENS at the cashier's desk—more beautiful than ever. And there was MARY BETHEA hopping tables and much gossip about '33. I managed to down cold coffee and warm grapefruit and continued down the street. On each sides were shops bringing back sweet memories; HAROLD ABRAMS' Shop of Young Men's Clothing, CRANMER HENDER-

SON'S Store of Athletic Equipment and EVELYN KAMINSKY'S Shop of chic ladies apparel. Deciding not to miss anything, I entered Evelyn's Shop and discovered MARGARET MAUNEY modelling the very latest designs from Paris, and was she stunning??!! I soon found that EVA MAE JOYNER was designer of a number of smart models.

I decided to take in a little more of the ole home town and continuing up the Main Drag I soon spotted CAROLYN HANBY demonstrating a new invention guaranteed to stop hose runs, the invention being the masterpiece of MARY ELLEN BROWN. After receiving a large hello from Carolyn, I proceeded onward. I spent the rest of the morning shopping in JULIUS BERGER'S Department Store. I lunched in EVELYN KNOX'S Tea Room. From there I returned to the hotel to find my friends already assembled in my room. After I searched my baggage to be sure everything was safe, we quickly organized plans for the P. M.'s outing.

The first stopping place was "SONNY" HALL'S Yacht, "Hangover", to visit to which we had a very urgent invitation. As we stepped on board the yacht the first person who greeted us was "BUNKY" BOGAN, who was hostess. "Bunky" informed me that since I had not been in Wilmington since '33, she had a few first class surprises for me, and was I surprised? Go ahead and ask me. As I was going down the steps (Land lubbers lingo) I met our old class-mate, CHARLES DREHER, ascending from a gym class where he was instructing ELLA MAE WALKER and ROSALIE STONE in the art of wrestling. After a chat with Charles, I was about to continue my way when PAT HUNT who was first steward, came galloping around the corner, which called for another "Bull-session." When I finally reached the second deck, I found "BUBBA" WOMBLE, MARY RUSHER, ELEANOR GRANT and MARION HENDERSON clustered around the bar. As I walked closer I heard OLIVE SMITH, bar maid, trying to induce them to try one of SADIE ELMORE'S famous cock-tails. As I was about to indulge in one myself "Bunky" came up and dragged me away. I found myself face to face with RUSSELL CLARK, first-mate, before I knew where I was—Well, I thought I had walked into a reunion of the class of '33 when I came near the swimming pool; for there, amid much splashing and shrieks, I found LEILA JAMES, MABEL McIVER, FRANCES SMITH and JACK ULMER (Whatta Man) raising quite a commotion in some of MABEL HALL'S newest creations, a combination of bathing suits and beach pyjamas. This was more than I could stand so I beat a hasty retreat and with my so-called "guides" bid "Sonny" and "Bunky" a fond farewell.

We went in one of the FRANCES WEATHERSBEE famous "string" Drug Stores and found MARY NELL HARRIS and OLLIE MAE SUTTON jerking sodas, ELVA LEE BROWN filling prescriptions and JACK ANDERSON hopping tables. Upon reaching the street sometime later I saw a huge placard proclaiming DAVID CHADWICK'S Scandals of '65—fresh from the Great White Way. Glancing closer I discovered that among his chorus were EMILY BARINO, MARY LILY DAVIS, MARY LOUISE BATE, DOROTHY HAYES, ALMA MURRAY and MARIE SEITTER—And what a sextet!! But what shocked me speechless was the even huger placard which proclaimed the SAM SORY, GRACE LEWIS eccentric dance team. I immediately rushed into the nearest drug store and reserved a box from TINA LEE SWAIN. A few blocks further a huge truck proclaimed that the NATHAN STEIN Furniture Store was having a fire sale. I stepped close to observe the sign when the driver of the truck hailed me loudly and merrily—it was none other than LEE WILLIAMS, and I soon found that I had missed little or no gossip from my earlier encounter with the alumnae of '33. On Front Street (or is it Wall Street?) I discovered the JAMES WALLACE, DONALD PAGE Law Offices, but having little or no time I decided to drop in on them later. I had just about reached the conclusion that I had better kick up some dust in the direction of the hotel when who did I run into but ANNE WOODBURY, rushing belatedly to an appointment with her beauty specialist, ELIZABETH BAREFOOT. She insisted on sending me to the Hotel in her car, and it felt good to be issuing orders to THOMAS HARRIS, her chauffeur.

Early that evening, I, in the company of my friends, took in a big party at HELEN FERGUS' pent house, and among those present were KATHERINE WILSON, who was threatening to swamp Chopin in her piano compositions, MILDRED and TOMMY SHEPHERD, whose puppet theatre had gained world recognition and MARGARET MINTZ, who had recently published a cook book. I was rather ill at ease among such celebrities, and we soon left, to proceed to see ROBERT HANCOCK'S latest play, in which MARGARET HOLLINGSWORTH and J. C. PARKER made violent love to each other. I dashed behind the stage to see Margaret after the performance, but was informed by ALLIE MAE STILLMAN, her private maid, that she would be unable to see any newspaper reporters at present. Feeling very much squelched, I left and our next stop was JOHN FARMER'S Miniature Monte Carlo.

Here I found CATHERINE FEENSTRA as cigarette girl and ELIZABETH O'CROWLEY attracting attention to roulette. Also I saw WADDELL CORBETT, gangster, and his right hand man, JACK HUNTER, directly across the table from SIDNEY WILSON and WALLACE WEST, Plainclothesmen. After losing heavily at the hands of ESTHER WILLIAMS, the town's most famous card shark, we proceeded on.

I was informed by my so-called escorts that the latest craze was boxing and we were to take in a boxing match between ALEX SHOLAR and RAIFORD TRASK. On arrival I found that quite a crowd had already assembled and I spotted among the crowd a good number of our old class mates including FLORINE WEAVER with JAMES CARTER, ALICE WARTERS with PRESTON NESBITT and quite a few others. As the match began I found that GENEVIVE MURREL was Alex' manager and that ELIZABETH KALNER was Raiford's manager, and who do you think was refereeing?—The one and only DREXEL HIGH. At the end of the second round we left because my friends suddenly remembered that I had not as yet taken in Wilmington's Coney Island, which was said to be decidedly more interesting at night because of the gang wars frequently fought in the vicinity. Feeling an urge for adventure and this promising fair excitement, I agreed and so we departed for the big attraction.

The first persons I spotted here were the JOHNSON quintet, ROY, CURTIS, MILDRED, REBECCA and CLEMENT staggering out of the Loop the Loop, which I found easily understandable when I was informed that it was owned and operated by JOHN ANDERSON. At this interval I was persuaded to try some cotton candy from ELIZABETH CARROLL. Upon taking a few steps and managing to lose my friends I saw HELEN EVERETT, ED KING and LEONTINE KORNEGAY emerging from the house of mirrors in spasms of laughter. Then I went over and engaged in a talk with BILL MAY who was selling hot dogs. While searching for my companions a short while later I encountered ELIZA JANE PARKER emerging from the animal tent, and she informed me that she was now training bears—surprised? Go ahead and ask me was I surprised. She also told me that MARTHA TURNER was on the grounds as snake charmer in a side show and that LILLIAN SEBRELL was operating a house of horrors. At this point of the conversation I met my guides and we decided that home sweet home was the place for us.

I was awakened early the following morning and we first went over MARGARET WILLIAMS' Shoe Factory. I found LUREEN VEREEN as Superintendent and soon discovered that MARIE FLOWERS designed all creations manufactured—DORIS DAVIS, who was over-seer offered to show us around. I found HUGHIE SIMONS in the engine room. In the office I found MILDRED HOWELL and CATHERINE ANDERSON poring over blue prints for an addition to the building, which was all very interesting, but as everything must end at one time or another we had to leave and our next stop was the air field. We found there a new hangar which had been recently constructed by ELLA BURRIS Better Building Corporation. Here NELL OLDKNOW, CHARLOTTE ORRELL and MARGARET SMALL were professional instructors (?) in the exasperating act of attempting to teach JANE WILSON, MARY MASON and NANCY HILL the fundamentals. Soon we encountered the head mechanic, KENNETH HILL and his assistant, DENNIS LARKINS, who invited us to "go up" but finding out that LOUISE SELL was to pilot us, we politely but firmly refused. However we did accept the invitation of MYRTLE BAILEY to view the grounds. We soon found that the site was the endowment of Senator ANTIONETTE BLACK in 1945. We saw the head gardner, JUNIUS COUNCIL and his assistants, ELEANOR BLAKE and CLARINE HORTON deep in an argument concerning the hedges. Further on we saw ELEANOR WALTON, at that time Commissioner of Public Works of the city, also viewing the grounds. After a talk with her, we decided to return to Wilmington.

On the verge of entering the hotel I was induced by a newsie, BURK REHDER, to purchase an extra. Glancing at it I found that BILLY JUSTICE and his party of explorers, including ALTON POWELL, BENNIE SANDLIN, RUTH VANN, LOUISE BLIZZARD and MRYTLE BROOKS had returned to the city from Mars. This evidently was great news for panemonium seemed king, and before the news could become circulated around the hotel a great parade came marching up the street hoisting banners and shrieking forth "Sweet Adeline" and "God Save Our King." Heading this parade was HELEN RITTER and not far behind was MARY LOUISE WILLIAMS and FRANCES MUSSELWHITE. Not wanting to miss anything I followed the mob, and soon I found myself listening to stump speeches by EMILY ROSE MEMORY, ELLEN RACKLEY, FRANK SINCLAIR and innumerable others on the appreciation of the city for the great achievement of said explorers.

Still mystified I returned to the hotel and had lunch. After lunch while engrossed in reading SUE SHOLAR'S latest novel, "Wandering Widows", the 'phone rang and the telephone girl then on duty, GOLDIE RODERICK, informed me that my friends were coming up to my room. Wondering what plans they had already formulated for the afternoon I answered their knock. I found that they had secured tickets to the matinee of MARY CLOE'S newest burlesque to be performed in the ROGER LILES Academy. Upon arriving there ushers FAY REYNOLDS and FANNIE RAY WILLIAMS found our seats. The performance was extremely enjoyable, best attraction being the chorus consisting of SARA VEREEN, CATHERINE DAVIS, MARY LOUISE CARTER, DOROTHY KLANDER, GLADYS MOBLEY and EDNA RIVENBARK. Immediately after leaving we were ushered into one of WINIFRED DAVIS' Electric Static Trains which was controlled by MARY FENNELL and would in time take us to the one and only Wrightsville Beach. To my astonishment I found HERMAN JONES and EDGAR KEAL as conductors and MARY DEMPSY was hostess. FRANK HAINES portrayed very well the part of porter. On our arrival at the beach we found a most magnificent building occupying the space just opposite the old Oceanic Hotel. I learned that it was leased to ANDREW HUFFMAN. Among those standing in front of the building were GLADYS HANCHY, BERNARD KING, DORIS LANDEN and IRVING MILLER. Upon entering we were entertained by WALTER HEWETT, playing the part of Street Singer, CATHERINE HASKETT as Kate Smith, DAVID HOROWITZ as Eddie Cantor. Ah—fond memories of '33!! CARROLL KING (who at that time was floor manager, assured us that we would find things O. K. (More '33!) ELEANOR PRIDGEN promised us a very thrilling ride on one of HURLEY SEAWELL'S speed boats, which we found was capable of doing 285 miles per hour. On leaving the beach, as I was in a great hurry, I encountered GLADYS SEITTER and KENNETH WARREN, owners of this magnificent building. They assured me that GLADYS WENBERG would take me to town in record time. After arriving in Wilmington, I found I barely had time to make my train.

I arrived home only this morning, having spent a most enjoyable and reminiscent few days in Wilmington.

And now, Ladies and Gentlemen, we once more join the F I B Network. Stand by for station announcements.

Last Will and Testament

NORTH CAROLINA,
County of New Hanover.

We, the Senior Class of Nineteen Hundred and Thirty-Three, of County of New Hanover and State of North Carolina, having come to realize something of the uncertainties of this mortal life through the great efforts put forth to make possible the execution of this instrument, being of sound mind and memory, do make and publish this, our last will and testament, in the following manner and form, that is to say:

I, Harry Dosher, leave to the president of next year's Senior Class, my unusual executive ability; whatever ability he may already possess supplemented by most valuable contribution herewith, should enable him to accomplish the seemingly impossible.

I, Joe Boylan, will my great activity of both mind and body to Pat Breen.

I, Thomas Harris, leave to him who shall be chosen the biggest flirt, my ability to coquet yet fail to receive official recognition.

I, Henry Breeden, leave my ability to always be on time to Freddy Farrar.

We, Jack Fussell and Charles Dreher, leave to next year's "Cat's Meow" staff, our wisdom, vision, and experience, realizing that "Ours" plus "Theirs" will be needed to keep the paper going on the same high plane of endeavor.

I, Margaret Williams, leave my ability to keep in good with the teachers to Kenneth Welsh; may he use it to advantage.

I, Hortense Glover, leave to the girls of the Student Body, my numerous college and high school "boy friends", knowing that there will be, at least, one for each girl.

I, Mary Bethea, leave my girlish ways to Eleanor Sugg.

I, Lois King, leave to Lydia King, my coterie of masculine admirers.

I, Jane Cooper, leave my fondness for horses to Peter Knight.

I, Vivian Dickson (not knowing to whom to leave my many fine characteristics), have decided to let the presidents of next year's classes distribute them as they see fit.

We, John Anderson and Duval Greer, leave our accumulated years of high school knowledge and experience to the incoming Freshmen.

I, Robert Bowden, leave my unique way with women to Bill Henderson.

I, Arthur Anderson, leave to Ed Cunningham, my "cunning" ways.

I, Milton Finklestein, herewith entrust to Charles West, the outstanding athletic ability formerly bequeathed me by another.

I, James Lyell, do leave to Billy Robertson, my ability to burn school and get by, hoping that he proves to be as great an adept at the art as was I.

I, Joseph Womble, having established a marathon graduation record, leave same to Kerr Hobbs; for his sake, may it remain unbroken.

I, Herbert Bluethenthal, leave to Carl Peiffer, my melodious voice.

We, Marvin Allen and Holmes McKeithan, bequeath to Oscar Durant, our combined intellectual powers.

I, Lewis Puckett, will my divine beauty to Margaret O'Brian.

I, Harry Smallbones, leave my extraordinary ability to work "Advanced Algebra" to Thomas Ames.

I, Woody Farmer, leave to Wallace Barber, my obsession for juggling mathematical and scientific problems with the usual unsuccessful results.

I, Harold Abrams, leave my flawless complexion to Isaac Hobbs.

I, Drexel High, leave to "Brother Billy", by mischievous ways.

We, the Senior Class, leave to the Seniors of next year, the many prerogatives we have exercised and enjoyed, which we hope will assist materially in the solution of the many weighty problems that will inevitably arise from time to time.

We, the Senior Class, leave to our beloved N. H. H. S., our devotion, loyalty, and love.

Our Principal, Dr. W. O. Hampton, is hereby constituted and appointed lawful executor, being authorized to draft upon the teaching faculty as able assistants, to the end that every article of this instrument shall be duly executed to its true intent and purpose.

This is our last will; all others previously devised, being declared null and void.

Signed, sealed, published, and declared this June 1933 by

THE SENIOR CLASS OF 1933.

Foot Ball

The 1932 edition of the Wildcat eleven did not come through with flying colors, but witnessed a more successful season than any 'Cat team in the past two years. Of course, because of the depression, quarters were scarce, but nevertheless, games were well attended by followers of the Orange and Black.

Strong defensive play was the outstanding feature, for the boys established a new record in tie games with a grand total of four. Their most exciting and best played games were with Morehead City and Lumberton highs, both of which resulted in surprising upsets. During these contests, the local boys were rated as underdogs against two of the strongest elevens in Eastern Carolina, but came out on the larger end of the score. Naturally this is accounted for by that unforgetable fighting spirit that has always existed on the New Hanover gridiron.

In the opinion of local sports writers, Captain Cranmer Henderson and Billy Tomz were the most consistant ground gainers among the backfield candidates. As for the team's most spectacular player, that distinction was bestowed upon none other than Big Ed Cunningham, who was awarded the guard position on the All-State high eleven. Cunningham is considered to be one of the best linesmen Coach "Bob" Black has produced.

Boys' Basket Ball

Shortly before the 1932-33 basketball campaign got underway, everything appeared to be bright and rosy with an abundant supply of good cage material on hand, but unfortunately, the season resulted in being one of the most unsuccessful that the Wildcats ever experienced on the hardwood. This, perhaps, was due largely to unusually stiff competition.

The 'Cats boasted a supposedly great quint and were in high hopes of capturing the state title. In fact, it was feared by many Class "A" schools in the state, but much to the surprise of local prognasticators, the only disinction New Hanover received was that of being the most overrated team in the state. However, the boys fought hard and tried their best at all times—even though they did lose a vast majority of 15 encounters.

Although the various games attracted many loyal supporters on the local battle site, the campaign resulted in being a financial flop for Coach Clyde Carter, who personally sponsored the tough sailing.

Girls' Basket Ball

Despite of the fact that the New Hanover girls were handicapped by height—a most essential thing in the making of a good team—they should be congratulated for making as good a showing as they did. At least, their season resulted in being far more successful than that of last year, having chalked up three victories in 11 contests.

Dorothy Wysong again took the leading role for the girls topping all her teammates in high scoring. This little girl was the one who lifted the New Hanover sextet out of the dumps last year with her brilliant playing, so she certainly deserves considerable credit for her outstanding performances. Other fine players on this team were Mary Bethea, Helen Brickhouse and Lillie Pearl Williamson.

The coaching staff included Miss Jean Divine, "Tim" Smith and Milton Peck, all of whom were newly appointed bosses for the skirt contingent. Prospects for next season appear to be fairly good, the only loss through graduation being Captain Bethea and Eleanor Walton.

Tennis Team

For the first time in the history of New Hanover High School, tennis has at last come to the front as one of the most popular sports and surely a leader among the major teams of the school. Starting the year with four letter men and keeping this team intact throughout the season, the locals have breezed through all opposition up to the time of this writing.

Starting with Washington, N. C. High School which they defeated 4-2, the team next invaded Wake Forest College and proceeded to take the measure of the Frosh 4-1, thereby keeping their record of never having lost to Wake Forest Freshmen. After a short rest the team went to Chapel Hill, N. C., for the state championships in singles and doubles.

Allen Croom represented the team in the singles and Allen and Lewis Puckett played the doubles. The team returned from this trip with the first doubles championship New Hanover has won since 1916 when the school was Wilmington High.

The next trip carried the boys to Presbyterian Junior College at Maxton, N. C., where they defeated the varsity team of that school 5-1. The team is planning to go to Charlotte and if they win over them they will be entitled to the team championship of the state.

Those making up the team are: Allen Croom, No. 1; Lewis Puckett, No. 2; Woodrow Wilson, No. 3; and Joe Boylan, No. 4. All of these boys are playing their last year for N. H. H. S.

The following is the schedule of the team:

Mar.	Washington	2	N. H. H. S.		4
Apr.	Wake Forest	1	"		4
Apr.	Presbyterian Jr.	1	"		5
	Chapel Hill

Semi finals: Durham High—7-5, 6-4
Finals: Charlotte High—8-6, 6-1

The team presented a beautiful loving cup to the school which was given them by the University of North Carolina.
